His Majesty Speaks

I understand that the subject of the Clintonian this term is Knighthood The knight of old, clad all in armor, rode forth upon his charger to right the wrongs of the world, wherever he might find them, and to perform romantic deeds of derring do.

It is a strange parallel that in this, the twentieth century of our civilization, so many thousands of Clinton boys should now be riding across the countries of the world to right the wrong that has been done to all of us. These are the knights of our modern days.

But true knighthood need not necessarily be either romantic or dramatic. A person may live quietly, indeed, and still unostentatiously fulfill the vows of knighthood. Chivalry is needed in this world. A burning desire to stamp out the evils that lie so close to us is imperative, if we are to survive. When you young men leave us this summer you, too, will be admitted to knighthood of one kind or another. May you have the courage in war and in peace to live up to the height of your ideals.

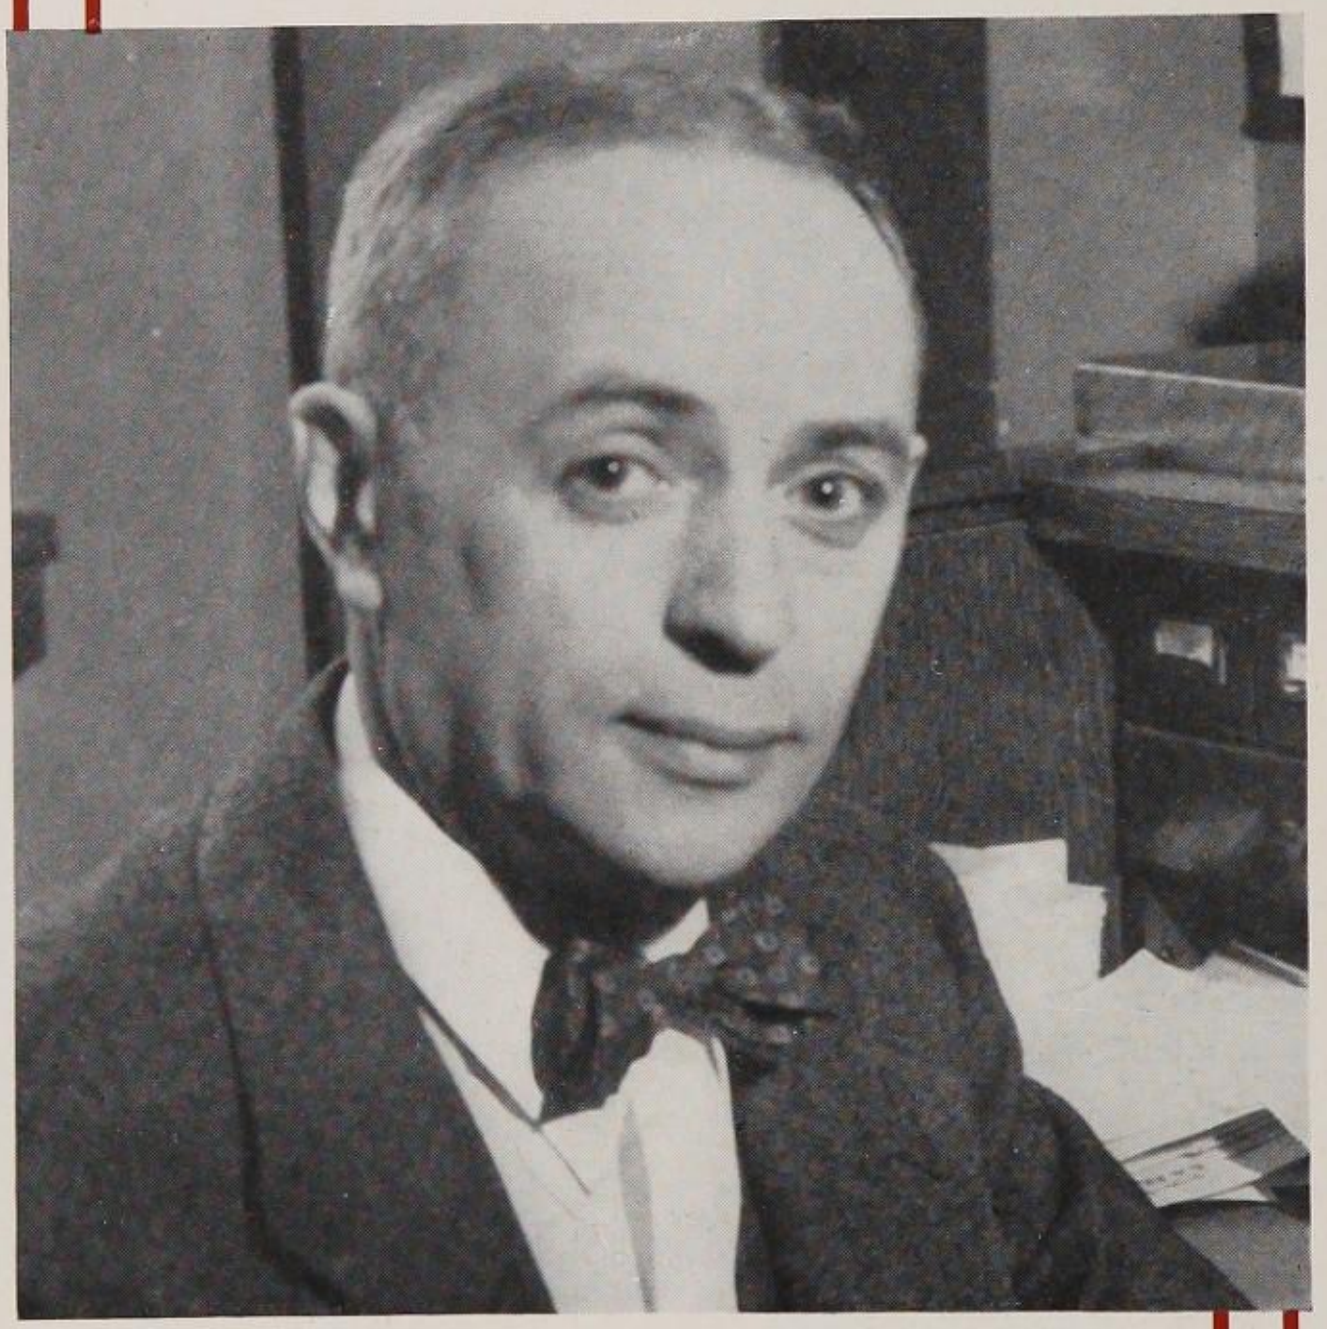
The Inner Circle

MR. FRANK BOYLAN—as Administrative Assistant has been of tremendous service to Clinton and its Principal. His efficiency coupled with a quick wit has gained for him the respect and admiration of the faculty and the student body.

MRS. ANTOINETTE HERRMANN—in her capacity as Dean of the Honor School, helps build the character and minds of students of high scholastic ability. She gives guidance to these students and supervises the courses offered by the Honor School.

MR. WILLIAM P. ZINGARO—also an Administrative Assistant, displays a deep understanding of the needs of Clinton. Industrious and versatile, he has done much to give our school the fine reputation it enjoys.



Dedication

To MR. ABRAHAM FEIBUSCH — In sincere appreciation of his service to Clinton in his capacity as faculty adviser to the G. O., this Clintonian is dedicated.

FACULTY

Court Favorites

The main castle of the De Witt Clinton School of Chivalry shone in the early morning sunlight. The castle resounded with the noise of clinking armor and boyish shouts of "Kill 'im! Kill 'im!" Suddenly, a great silence descended upon the battlements. Knight ARCHIE CUSHING (most versatile) left his jousting class abruptly, ascended the highest tower, and blew a high, clear note on his trumpet. The pitter-patter of tiny feet could be heard as the members of the faculty hurried to the office of Chief Knight "DOC" GUERNSEY (most beloved) who greeted them with a worried frown on his benign countenance. The last to appear were Knight-MAJOR COLMAN FRANK and Lady GRACE SCHAPIRO (best dressed man and woman) who had just put the finishing touches on their morning toilettes, followed by Knight Cushing, who had found it a little difficult to climb down from his high position. When the roster was complete, "Doc" Guernsey called the meeting to order and said, "Knights and Ladies of the Sacred Order of Clinton, Knight JEROME BURNS (most tests) has disappeared, coincidental with the disappearance of Lady HELEN LOWELL (prettiest). We must uphold the glory of Clinton and find them." Lady INA PRIMROSE (most cooperative) put on a record of a stirring marching song, and the faculty all filed out to the strains of "De Witt C." While Knight MAX SHERRIN (most industrious) went to get the armor, the rest of the illustrious company gathered around Knight AARON COHEN (most popular) and eagerly discussed the day's events. The armor arrived, and the faculty had just about donned it when Lady Primrose called excitedly to Knight-Major Frank and Lady Schapiro to stop for a moment. She hurried over with her wrench in one hand and a hammer in the other, tightened a loose bolt in Knight-Major Frank's armor, and straightened a dented armor-plate in Lady Schapiro's modish pink and blue model. They thanked her in unison. "After all," they said, "we have a reputation to uphold."

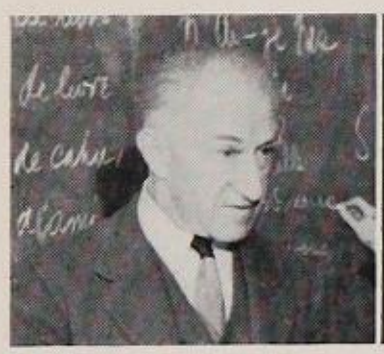
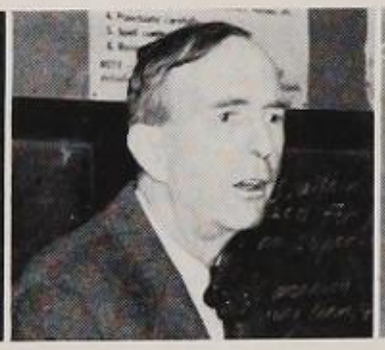
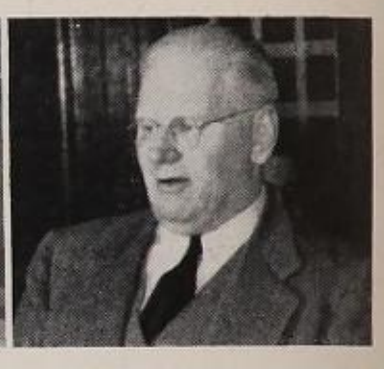
The company mounted their trusty steeds, and to a shout of "Onward!" by Knight Cohen, the brave warriors were on their way. They had been riding for some time when they caught sight of the missing pair in the distance. With swift riding they soon overtook the two. Knight Cushing sat ready to charge, reins in one hand, lance balanced on his head, and in his other hand a long-stringed yo-yo which he was busily operating. At this juncture, Knight ABEL MEEROPOL (handsomest) shouted to the fair Lady Lowell, "I'll save you!" However, this chivalrous gesture was doomed to failure, for the gallant Knight tripped over the dangling yo-yo string.

Knight Burns, upon seeing this glittering array of gallantry, said, "What's all the fuss about? I've merely been explaining to the fair lady the principle of diminishing returns."

Lady Lowell corroborated this statement, and on hearing this, Knight EFFINGHAM MURRAY (fewest tests) asked Lady Lowell whether she had found the discussion interesting. Before she could give the obvious answer, Knight DEAN EDMUND FOOTE (best natured) said, "Come, come, gentlemen, let this bickering cease. Knight Burns is really a nice fella." Everyone agreed with Knight Foote on this point.







The party returned to the castle, where they celebrated the return of the missing pair. Knight ARCHIE ISAACS (wittiest) amused the company with his sparkling repartee, and to make the occasion a momentous one, Knight Burns chanted the law of diminishing returns. With this as a bedtime story, it was not long before all were asleep.

ACTIVITIES

Quill and Ink

Taking its cue from the town crier in days of yore, the Clinton News brings the important happenings of our school to over 4,500 readers. This semester, the "News" included among its regular features a war news column and an alumnotes column featuring news from Clinton alumni in the Armed Forces. With Norman Altman as Editor-in-chief, and a staff including M. Emanuel—News Editor, P. Barru—Features Editor, H. Dickstein—Sports Editor, W. Brady—Page Four Editor, N. Reingold—Staff Editor, and L. Fox—Headlines Editor, the "News" continues sending copies to our alumni in the Services. Mr. R. Philipson and Mr. M. Ferber act as Faculty Adviser and Business Manager respectively.

After a lapse of one semester, the Magpie again resumed publication. The Magpie gives Clinton students an opportunity to express their literary and artistic abilities. With Mrs. M. Whalen as Faculty Adviser, the staff was headed by D. Horowitz and N. Imber—Co-Editors-in-chief, D. Federman—Literary Editor, and R. Klimpert—Art Editor.

From Books to Armor

All over the world, on every battlefront, men of Clinton are fighting for the ideals that Clinton represents. . . . On guard at a lonely jungle outpost in the South Pacific; in the crow's-nest of a sleek destroyer as it ploughs through the turbulent waters of the North Atlantic; in the rear gun-turret of a Liberator winging its way toward Germany, Clintonites stand ready to do their part. . . . And in their infrequent moments of rest, their thoughts turn to home, loved ones, and the four happy years they spent at their beloved alma mater. . . .

The first sight of Clinton's ivy-covered walls as seen from the bus or subway . . . The endless wait on a cold winter morning for a seemingly nonexistent train . . . The dash for the doors as Mr. Jahoda's shrill whistle cuts through the air . . . Waiting for a late pass in the lunchroom . . . Confusion in section . . . The forty-three minutes that never passed quickly enough . . . The six-minute dash to your next period in four-minutes' time . . . The end of the day when weary Clintonites dropped their inhibitions and ran wildly for home, to their clubs, or to cheer their team on in Gym III . . .

While these thoughts race through their minds, they know that those happy, carefree years are gone forever, although they can never be erased from the minds and hearts of Clinton men.

1940 . . . FALL: As the first few weeks of the term wore on, we freshmen gradually got over the gym-spot buying and Tower-climbing stage, only to be faced with a new horror: the glamorous

Senior hats. . . . Little did we dream that the same hat we scoffed at in our freshman year would become ours when we reached our Senior term. . . . Even this grotesque replica of the Civil War could not shake our awe for the "Mighty Senior". . . . We couldn't help liking Clinton despite the fact that very often searching parties had to be sent out to find us in that wilderness of halls. . . . The "News" Inquiring Reporter asked, at that time, "Should America declare war on Nazism?" . . . Those were the days we had a football team, and Clinton came through with five wins out of seven tries under the leadership of Steve Skapenic. . . . Feeling was high when Principal Clark forbade the wearing of the traditional Senior hat. . . . Our cross-country team took first place in the P.S.A.L. meet. . . . A straw vote conducted by the Clinton News predicated an overwhelming third-term victory for FDR. . . . Our basketball team won the first eight games, driving the student body delirious with joy. . . . Regents Week came, and for once we could gloat . . . We were free!

1941 . . . SPRING: Speaking of Senior hats, the Seniors wore them on the neck this term. . . . Penny milk was introduced in the lunchroom. . . . Mr. Gallo became the first of Clinton's faculty to don the uniform of his country. . . . A huge Gymkana was staged, with most of the clubs and squads of the school represented. . . . The Mosholu quintet captured the Bronx basketball crown, but Franklin nosed us out in the city championship. . . . Broadway came to Clinton with the production of "A Connecticut Yankee" on Clinton Nite. . . . The Magpie sponsored a contest with a date with a Powers model as a prize. . . . The tennis team won the city championship. . . . The death of Mr. Gallagher, late session dean, came as a great shock to his many friends in Clinton. . . . The April Fool issue of the Clinton News was a big hit.

1941 . . . FALL: School spirit ran rampant as the gridders crushed McKee, Monroe, Evander, and Commerce, but finally lost to a strong Lincoln squad. . . . The quiet of a Sunday afternoon was shattered by news of the Pearl Harbor tragedy. . . . Mr. Clark's simple, but stirring address set the keynote to Clinton's participation in the war effort. . . . Bond sales soared. . . . A war stamp barometer was set up in the rotunda. . . . Numerous war drives received full support from Clinton. . . . We still had normal activities . . .G. O. dances . . . elections.

1942 . . . SPRING: We were fourth termers with one-half of the rocky road to graduation almost over. . . . "Is Zat So," Clinton Nite production, was a smash hit. . . . The city championship was captured by Clinton's track team. . . . Fire drills were augmented by air-raid drills. . . . Stamp and salvage campaigns were in full swing under the able supervision of "Doc" Guernsey.

1942 . . . FALL: We returned to Clinton after a glorious vacation and were confronted by window-panes painted with chemicals that minimize splintering and prevent snooping during free periods. . . . All of Clinton's trophies and awards were removed to places of safety. . . . Our football team beat Roosevelt, lost to Seward, and was annihilated by Evander to the tune of 27-0. . . . Those were the times that tried men's souls. . . . The Senior military hats gave emphasis to President Roosevelt's proposal calling for the drafting of eighteen-year olds. . . . Refugees from Townsend Harris cluttered up our halls, but eventually they learned their place. . . . Morty Goldfarb, captain of the victorious swimming team, was elected President of the G. O.

1943 . . . SPRING: Sixth term was upon us, and we all firmly agreed with Macbeth that the first period bell "is a knell that summons us to heaven or to hell." . . . A fine production of "Charley's Aunt" was presented at Clinton Nite. . . . Clintonites mourned the sad news that football was out for the duration. . . . Mrs. Schirrmacher's Dramatic Society presented a gay comedy, "Cox and Box." . . .Larry Fuchs was elected G. O. prexy. . . . Every one of us looked forward with anticipation to the ever-approaching summer vacation when school cares could be forgotten and Shakespeare could rest once more in his grave.

1943 . . . FALL: At last, we were Seniors; well, lower seniors, anyway. . . . We proudly sported the diminutive yet significant seventh form button. . . . We developed a reluctant respect for Edmund Burke who could deliver a speech covering seventy-odd pages (and in small print, too). . . . A seven-period day was inaugurated. . . . Periods were lengthened to forty-three minutes apiece. . . . Plans for a Seventh Form Prom fell through . . . Murray Frank was elected G. O. president. . . . Larry Fuchs was chosen to take the reins of our Senior class.

1944 . . . SPRING: SENIORS!!! We could hardly believe that at long last we had arrived. . . . We purchased our combination tickets, appreciative of the "bargain" we were getting for only three dollars. . . . We received our Senior Civil War chapeaux. . . . Gee, they looked so nice when we voted for them. . . . But the undergraduates were impressed, and the girl friend isn't choosy, anyway. . . . Loud groans echoed throughout the school when we received our graduation photo proofs. . . . Still louder ones could be heard when we learned we had to take them back in person. . . . With Mrs. Whalen's return, the "Magpie" published another memorable issue. . . . Clinton Nite was a sellout, featuring an excellent production of "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," ably supervised by Miss Leon. . . . We struggled through college applications, feverishly, worrying what this or that item meant, despite the fact that most of us would enter the armed forces on graduating. . . . The names of Schayes, Kaufman, and Campbell were on the tip of everyone's tongue, as Clinton's thoughts turned to basketball. . . . We won the Bronx championship, but were defeated by a strong Franklin quintet in the semi-finals. . . . We took every type of test: the V-12, A-12, Radio Technician, Air Force Reserve, and the intrastate scholarship exam. . . . Class Nite was swell. . . . Regents Week we hit the jackpot. . . . Practically everyone had at least three exams. . . . Graduation drew nearer. . . . Finally, the great day arrived. . . . A few speeches, a few awards, and then our diplomas. . . . Suddenly we realized that it was all over. . . . Four years of work and fun that we would always remember. . . . AND NOW THE FUTURE IS OURS!

This term's Arista may look back on a job well done. The work it set out to do has been successfully accomplished. The credit goes, first of all, to "Doc" Guernsey, Dean of Arista, who ably guided it through the term.

Equal honors go to its officers and committee chairmen. Among them are: Arthur Galub—Leader, Nathan Reingold—Vice-Leader, Jerry Haines—Secretary, Herbert Jaffe and Roy Scheiner—co-chairmen of the War Stamp Committee, Bruce Burstan and Edward Trachtenberg—Help Classes, Wallace Epstein—Student Advisory, Sherman Lowy and Seymour Schwartz—Scholarship Investigation, and David Korn and Jerry Marenoff who handled tickets for Clinton Nite. In addition, members of Arista aided the Senior Class in its project of having a better lunchroom this term.

Each and every Arista man has had his full share in this term's achievements. The next Arista will, we're sure, continue in Clinton's tradition. Good Luck and Success to it.

The Reviewing Stand

1969! It is a rainy day and Joe Clinton is rummaging through the attic of his home to pass the time away. He spies a tan, dust-covered book and draws it from its nook in the bookcase. On the cover, faintly legible, are the letters CLINTONIAN—June 1944.

"H-m-m-m. A lot happened during those years I spent in high school," muses Joe. "Roosevelt was elected President a third time, America was attacked by Japan, a Selective Service Act was passed, priorities were needed for everything, and you couldn't get a room for love or money. There were abbreviations for everything . . . WACS, WAVES, OPA, OWI, ODT, WPB . . . The girls went 'khaki-wacky.' If it wasn't a man in uniform, it was Frank Sinatra. Just mention his name and they'd swoon. I remember a girl once telling me that his frail appearance appealed to the mother instinct in her. He didn't have a bad voice, come to think of it . . . Harry James, the trumpet man, was another heart-stealer . . . and the way the girls copied Veronica Lake's blind-in-one-eye hair-do. Did they look funny!

"Those were the days of jitterbugs, zoot suits, and short skirts. You had to grease your foot to get it past the "peg" at the cuffs of the pants. And those jackets!" snickers Joe, "Why, they looked like overcoats the way they hung down almost to the knees. The skirts girls wore were almost as long as the zoot jackets; they ended before they got to the knees. One objection to short skirts, I remember, was that too many girls with legs that looked better in slacks wore them." So saying, he leans back and, with a smile flickering over his lips and a reminiscent gleam in his eyes, Joe softly sighs, "Yes, those were the happy days."

Helmets on Parade

In French they say, "Quelle monstrosité." In German they say "Gut Gott." Good old American slang would put it "Holy mackerel." In any language they are referring to our Senior Hat.

It is rumored that this gaudy headgear, reminiscent of clashes between men clad in blue and grey, was conjured up by a Hat Committee. . . . No wonder no one knows who they are.

Free French relations were dealt a cruel blow as the pride of les admiraux français, the French Naval Hat, went the way of many a good ship, to reside permanently in Davey Jones' locker. The same fate was shared by the Crew Cap, which was drowned out by the arguments of ardent Harvard and Yale fans. And so it was, that the Clinton Senior found himself the proud possessor of a sumptuous sombrero that made Generals Grant and Lee turn over in their respective graves.

After several weeks of indecision, a few more hardy Seniors ventured beyond the protection of Clinton's corridors, to face the hostile glances cast by freshmen, envious Sevens, and cynical sophomores. Nor were glances the only things cast at Seniors. The Senior Hat became the target of an all out "blitz," with snowballs, ripe tomatoes and verbal epithets being used as artillery.

It was not uncommon for a Senior to be deluged with such remarks as: "Hey, Reb!" "Damn Yankee!" "Oh, Red Cap carry my bags!" and "Well whatya know, one o' Jeb Stuart's boys!" This does not include a host of other unprintable ones.

Despite all this, the Clinton Senior is unaffected. He still goes on his merry way, and may be seen walking thru the halls, whistling in a very blasé manner. He pauses now and then to adjust his chapeau at a more jaunty angle, completely unaware of the teacher slinking up behind him. . . .

SOCCER TEAM

TRACK—In this, his second successive season as track coach, Mr. Jacob Silbert found Old Man Graduation his toughest competitor even before the board campaign got underway. Rudy Simms, Tom Clayton, Lenny Scheer, Clarence Williams, and the two Callender boys had departed, leaving the Red and Black pilot with only three returning veterans, namely: Capt. Benny Seidman, Ollie Tucker, and Johnny Taylor. But by the sheer fact that they represented De Witt Clinton, the tracksters went into the indoor city championships and emerged third behind New Utrecht and Lincoln. Deadlocked with New Utrecht at seventeen points going into the last event, the 1200-yard relay, spectators saw the Governors fail to place while the Green annexed first place for five additional markers and the meet. Lincoln's quartet garnered third to wind up with eighteen tallies and the place position.

TRACK TEAM

SWIMMING—During this past spring semester, Clinton's mermen remained idle as far as actual P.S.A.L. competition went. But the Governor surf-splashers were undergoing intensive limbering-up operations in anticipation of their winter offensive. Coach William Chambers' squad, this term, consists of Captain Joe Jiminez, Alan Tichner, Wally Scher, Bob Chambers, "Chuck" Stern, Seymour Lerner, Lionel Martinez, Bob Sprauer, Don Kolesnick, Norman Martin, Frank Vincenti, Bob Bahssin, Bob Woods, Ken Giebel, George Taylor, Stan Roth, and Manager Bob Weledniger.

FENCING—Away back in those dark and dreary days of the new term, it seemed as though no teacher would undertake the task of coaching the Red and Black's foil contingent. But up popped Mr. Lee Juillerat and whether it was beginner's luck or not, his charges, captained by Hal Troupin, captured third place in the city fence-off elimination tournament. This marked the first time in years that the House of Clark had come so near to the top and those foil-wielders, besides

SWIMMING TEAM

HANDBALL TEAM

Captain Troupin, who made it possible were: Milt Horwitz, Ted Levy, Bill Neufeld, Dan Taub, and Charlie Levy.

FENCING TEAM

CHEERLEADERS—As the red bulb flashed and the buzzer bellowed to the malcontent of scores of loyal Clinton sons, the House of Clark's cheerleader corps joined the ranks of the unemployed. Franklin High had just taken the measure of a scrappy Clinton five, thus washing overboard the hopes that the anticmen had for cheering at the City Championship playoff tussle. Those whose jobs it was to "make with the hands" included Captain Howie Albrecht, Jack Greenberg, Jerry Wientraub, Larry Ashinoff, Lenny Rosensweig, Dave Pollack, Charley Maledosian, Kenny Kluger, and Stanton Roth.

SENIOR ATHLETICS — In comparison with previous hoop squads, this past quintet, under Captain Billy Ducas, topped them all. At center they didn't come any better than Leo Gilmovsky. As a tower of strength under the boards and possessing a knack of dropping in sets from the corner, Leo's record was one of good standing. Ducas and Donny Wechsler held down the guard positions. The latter really went to town in those opening minutes of the Monroe affair, won incidentally by the Governors, 32 to 26. Twice in early season's play, Sy Steinhardt scored in double figures. Last but not least was "Lefty" Teichberg, gifted with a pair of winged feet and a dead-eye, so to speak. As for substitutes, Gene Tannenbaum's deft ball handling and businesslike playmaking easily tagged him as the number six man.

BASKETBALL TEAM

BASKETBALL—De Witt Clinton's Ball Brothers, Foot and Basket, met in the darkest portion of the lunchroom two years ago and it was there that Foot divulged his going-away intentions. Before he bid Basket farewell, however, he made him promise to carry on the old Red and Black tradition, that of victory. Thus, the '43-'44 hoop season has fulfilled for Basket the promise made to Foot.

Basket impressively placed the Bronx crown upon his spheric noggin by eking out a 42 to 39 decision over Taft's toughies. One week later the "little man with the leather sun tan" closed shop with a pack of "Tigers" from Evander. In puncturing the pillbox twenty-two times. "Foothills" Schayes emerged top pilferer in the borough. His ninety-eight P.S.A.L. markers bettered the ninety-four chalked up by teammate Joel Kaufman.

And so Basket's right-hand man, Nathan April, directed traffic to and from Madison Square Garden. On Wednesday, March 8, the Coach handed Curtis, Richmond's best, a one-way ticket back to Richmond. Schayes and Kaufman were the big guns with the loud noises as far as scoring was concerned. Seventeen for Mr. S. and twelve for Mr. K. represented half and four more of the fifty registered by the Good Governor.

But alas! All good things came to a rather abrupt ending. Before an even larger turnout than that which witnessed the Curtis contest, the wearers of the Red and Black bowed 40 to 35 to an aggressive, towering Franklin five. Had Clinton succeeded in tossing in more than the five of eighteen free throw attempts, the outcome would have made the House of Clark the following morning a much cozier, lifelike place to attend. As the saying goes, "He who wishes for too much often receives too little."

To the crop of thirteen dribblers, namely, Adolph Schayes, Joel Kaufman, Jordy Klein, Bob Campbell, Bernie Dauerman, Lou Carlo, Paul Sweeney, Alvin Haas, Artie Glass, Marv Finkelstein, Paul Morrissey, Joe Arbuco, and Ted Ranzenhofer, this campaign has afforded one of those unforgettable experiences. . . . Let's hope that Foot, wherever he may be, has acknowledged his Brother's achievements, that is, up until that fateful Thursday afternoon of March 16.

Last Will and Testament

WE, THE SENIOR CLASS of June 1944, being of sound mind and body, do hereby bequeath these fitting gifts to our beloved Alma Mater.

To MR. HENRY KANTER: A two-gallon can of waterproof mustache wax.

To MR. JOSEPH STENSON: A colored photograph of the Irish Navy, draped in Kelly green.

To "DOC" IRWIN GUERNSEY: One motor-powered lawn-mower, guaranteed to remove five o'clock shadow.

To MR. ARCHIE ISAACS: One cushioned divan to replace the uncomfortable window ledge in room 347.

To MR. JEROME BURNS: Another chance to purchase some shares of A.T.&T. at $40 per.

To MISS LILLIAN WILSON: A one-million-word thesis on "The Hotdog—A Significant Factor In American History."

To THE HEALTH EDUCATION DEPARTMENT: One thousand and one push-ups to be followed by sixteen laps around the track.

To MRS. HELEN LOWELL: Next term's Clintonian staff, with the hope that they'll do half as well as this term's staff.

To MR. BENJAMIN SCUDDER: A special arrangement of "Mairzy Doats" suitable for performance on the organ.

To MR. VALENTINE MAYFORTH: An empty milk container and two bent straws.

To DEAN AARON COHEN: A Civil War hat to add to his growing collection of chapeaux terribles.

To NEXT TERM'S SENIORS: One battle-scarred desk inscribed with Math test answers, sundry bits of philosophy, artistic caricatures, and some good phone numbers.

Farewell

In the days of King Arthur, when knighthood was flourishing, a young man would eagerly undertake the long and tedious apprenticeship on the road to knighthood. He would work very hard, and diligently follow the ancient rules set down in the past. He would continually strive to perfect himself in order to become a man of the highest standards and ideals, and to achieve that rank in life he so earnestly desired.

In modern times, however, all traces of knighthood and consequently apprenticeship to knighthood have disappeared. In its place has come a form of moral and intellectual education which guides the person passing from the boyhood stage to manhood.

High school could be defined as an apprenticeship for youth going out into the world. The few short years of high school life are very important for they build the character and ideals of the student. They are usually indicative of a person's future in life.

To most of us, life has been very enjoyable during the past four years. We have learned by means of work and play. Our teachers have helped and guided us but we have also learned to think and plan for ourselves. We shall soon discover that we have had a good start in life, for our preparation for it has been both enjoyable and profitable. Consequently, we will always cherish the memories of our Clinton years. . . . We will leave our school with the firm conviction that we will triumph in our future struggle with the world . . . for there is no other road open to us. . . . And to all men of Clinton, Class of June '44 . . .GOOD LUCK!
